Your Speed and Strength SS2200 motorcycle helmet manufactured between January 2013 and July 2014 is being recalled.

You (the consumer) should return the helmet to the retailer where you originally purchased it for an exchange.

Why is a recall being conducted? In baseline requirements established by the NHTSA, test FMVSS No. 218, the penetration striker made contact with surface of the test headform. According to test results, the rider may not be adequately protected in the event of a crash.

What should you do? Retailers who are still in possession of the helmets should immediately cease all sales of the affected helmets and return them to Tucker Rocky Distributing for credit. We ask that all retailers post the enclosed recall notification in an appropriate location within their store. Please be advised, it is a violation of Federal Law for a dealer to sell any new or used item of motor vehicle equipment covered by a notification of noncompliance or recall. All purchasers/owners of the affected helmet should return the product to the retailer, where the helmet was purchased, for exchange. Upon receipt of the returned helmet, the retailer will contact Tucker Rocky for a Return Goods Authorization (RGA), and make arrangements for the appropriate size and model of replacement helmet to be shipped to the retailer from Tucker Rocky.
